judge that public schools in Detroit have been segregated over the years by racially discriminatory legal acts of the school board and the state.

To remedy the situation, U.S. District Court Judge Stephen G. Roth ruled in 1971 that a busing plan must be adopted to integrate schools in Detroit and its predominantly white suburbs.

The area, encompassing more than 300 square miles, has a total enrollment of some 780,000 students in 53 school districts in three counties.

The threat of cross-district busing has stirred up massive resistance in the suburbs, with parents groups vowing to keep their children out of public schools rather than allow them to be bused.

Judge Roth ruled any integration plan for Detroit must involve the entire metropolitan area because complete desegregation of the city's system alone would create large black majorities in all schools.

He said a plan involving Detroit only would simply change a school system which is now perceived as black and white to one that would be perceived as black, "thereby increasing the flight of whites" from the city.

Roth's ruling that a metropolitanwide remedy is needed to achieve integration was upheld by the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals

The Supreme Court agreed to hear the case when it was appealed by Michigan Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley on behalf of the governor, state board of education, superintendent of public intruction and state treasurer.

Kelley strongly denies Roth's finding that public officials had fostered segregation by law (de jure).

"The consistent history of official action in this state for well over a century has been to break down segregation, not to foster it," Kelley

The high court is expected to hand down a definitive decision in the Detroit case sometime in May or June.

Energy crisis down to 'problem'

PRESIDENT NIXON

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon has downgraded the energy crisis to a "serious problem" and predicted shorter gasoline lines for Americans by spring and an end to the Arab oil embargo

While citing improved odds against gasoline rationing, Nixon pledged to veto the emergency energy bill now before Congress if it comes to him containing the proposed oilprice rollback.

Such a measure would increase the fuel shortage and require "rationing all over the country," Nixon declared in his nationally broadcast news conference Monday night.

He also said the administration would bring inflation under control by increasing food and fuel supplies, rather than controlling prices, and again vowed to keep the economy from sinking into recession this year.

At several points in the news conference, Nixon referred to the fuel shortage not as a crisis, but as a

Senate takes up pay boost issue

whether to take a pay raise is closing in the March 6 deadline. on members of Congress

The Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee, meeting on the issue in a closed session today, reportedly was searching for an acceptable compromise.

Its recommendation will just be a preliminary to a vote in the Senate itself, possibly later this week.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said that the sooner the Senate votes, the better.

Under a law passed in 1967, salary increases included in President Nixon's budget will take effect automatically March 6 unless disapproved by either the Senate or the House. Under Nixon's proposal, congressional pay, not raised since it was increased from $30,000 a year to $42,500 in 1969, would go up to $45,700 this year, $49,100 next year and in 1976 to $52,800. Similar three-step raises are provided for federal judges and top executive branch officials, except that Cabinet members and Supreme Court justices would have their salaries increased from $60,000 to $64,500 in a single step next year.

Resolutions before the Post Office Committee gave it various choices, ranging from disapproving all the proposed raises to blocking only the increases for members of Congress to permitting only judges to get higher

Still another possibility under discussion was recommending that a pay boost for Senators and House members be deferred until next year, after the election.

Nixon, acting on a presidential commission's recommendation for an immediate 25 per cent salary increase, modified it by spreading the raise over three years.

Congress also has authority under the law to modify the President's proposal, as well as to accept it or reject it.

The House, with all its members up for election this year, apparently is not going to vote on the issue. Its Post Office Committee scheduled a meeting last week to consider it but the meeting never came off. Fourteen members stayed away, preventing the presence of a quorum.

But leaders of the Senate, where only a trial

Jury testimony plan rejected by President

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon says he won't testify before the Watergate grand juries but he would be willing to work out a way to tell his side of the story to special prosecutor Leon Jaworski. 'The special prosecutor transmitted the request that I testify before the grand jury and on constitutional grounds I respectfully declined to do so," the President told a news conference Monday night. "I did offer, of course, to respond to an interrogatory that the special prosecutor might want to submit or to meet with him personally to answer questions and he indicated that he did not want to proceed in that way," Nixon Jaworski had no immediate comment Monday night. But it was clear that if the prosecutor pursued the demand for an historic presidential appearance before a grand jury, it could precipitate a confrontation that would dwarf the legal battles over access to White House tapes.

Never before in American history has a president been asked to testify before a grand jury. Nixon already has been asked to appear as a witness at the California trial of former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman on state charges stemming from the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. The President declined a request that he appear but has taken no position on whether or not he would respond to written questions. A District of Columbia judge has scheduled legal arguments for March on the order summoning Nixon to California for the Ehrlichman trial. Legal experts have said they doubted it would be possible to force a President to travel across the country to testify at

"Looking to the future, I believe we can say now that while the crisis has been passed, the problem remains," he said. "It is a serious problem, but it is one that can be dealt with .

The President gave no date when he thought the embargo would be lifted, but he said he believes it is in the best interests of the Arab nations to begin U.S. oil shipments again.

He said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's Middle East trip to get a troop disengagement on the Syrian front will have a positive effect in getting the embargo lifted.

"By the same token, if the embargo is not lifted, it will naturally slow down the efforts that we are making on the peace front," Nixon said.

Nixon opened the news conference with a statement on the energy crisis, saying that the home fuel oil shortage has been overcome and the nation's factories kept running despite the shortage.

But he said the major problem remaining is gasoline, noting he had seen the long lines "as I have driven around in the Miami area and also in the Washington area.

As a result of federal efforts to increase the flow of gasoline and dampen consumption, " ... I now believe confidently that there is a much better than even chance that there will be no need for gas rationing in the United States," he said.

nibus measure that would give the administration broad powers, would be vetoed because he said it only manages the shortage rather than deal with the real problem of increasing supplies. A price rollback would be "immediately popular," he said, but would eventually increase the gasoline lines and lead to rationing.

Nixon said the energy bill, an om-

Nixon urged Congress to approve legislation to tax windfall profits of oil companies, deregulate natural gas prices, and allow amendments to environmental laws permitting greater use of coal as a fuel.

Road deaths dip sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) - The federal traffic safety director reports that deaths on the nation's highways were reduced by 23 per cent in January, the first month of the national mandatory 55 mile an hour speed limit.

Dr. James P. Gregory, administrator of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, said Monday there were 853 fewer deaths on the road last month than in January a year ago. In December, Gregory said, all states had fewer fatalities than they had a year before.

State speed limit cut faces final action

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State senators planned to vote today on a House-approved 55 miles per hour speed limit while other energy legislation headed into a new Senate subcommittee. The immediately-effective speed limit bill, which could take effect before the week is out, is needed prior to March 3 to avoid state loss of about $170 million in federal highway funds. It would be effective upon signing by

Gov. John J. Gilligan. Sen. Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, chairman of the Ways & Means Committee which is considering three energy bills, said Monday he plans to put those into a subcommittee.

The senator said he probably will name himself chairman and appoint an as yet undetermined number of other senators to the panel. In addition, the Hamilton County lawmaker said three members of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Conservation, and Environment will sit on the subcommittee as non-voting members. That committee is involved because of environmental aspects of the proposed legislation, he said. Maloney said Sens. Thomas A. Van

Meter, R-18 Ashland, Richard G. Reichel, R-29 Massillon, and Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, have been designated as the non-voting members of the subcommittee. The subcommittee will consider the governor's emergency energy bill, a Republican alternative to that measure introduced by Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, R-3 Columbus - and a bill already passed by the House which would beef up the powers of the Public Utilities Commission to deal with energy problems.

Maloney said he has discussed with Rep. Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, chairman of the House Select Committee on Energy, the possibility of joint meetings of energy subcommittees of the House and Senate. 'He seemed friendly toward the idea,' Maloney said.

Riffe last week named a subcommittee of the select committee to continue consideration of Gilligan's bill, criticized by some members of both parties because of broad powers it would vest in a proposed super energy board of seven named by the governor.

Named to the House subcommittee were Reps. Barney Quilter, D-47 Toledo; Harry J. Lehman, D-16 Shaker Heights; Thomas J. Carney, D-71 Youngstown, Norman A. Murdock, R-21 Cincinnati, and Thomas N. Kindness, R-58 Hamilton.

At its 1:30 p.m. floor session, the House planned to vote today on a bill to strengthen laws against child abuse. Among other things, it would require all Ohioans to report cases of child abuse and could result in a $250 fine and up to 30 days in jail for withholding such information.

In other business, Sen. Ronald M Mottl, D-24 Parma, said he plans to introduce a bill this week making kidnaping in Ohio punishable by the death penalty in the state's new criminal code. Under present law, the maximum penalty is seven years and a $10,000 fine, unless the kidnap victim is killed, Mottl said.

He said he wanted to introduce the bill in an effort to prevent political kidnapings in Ohio such as the Hearst abduction in California and a more recent one involving an Atlanta, Ga. newspaper editor.

Kissinger flies to Damascus

LONDON (AP) - Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flies to Damascus today, and a senior aide reported that Syrian President Hafez Assad appears 'in a frame of mind" to negotiate a troop disengagement agreement with

The official said President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and King Faisal of Saudi Arabia had influenced the Syrian leader. But the informant cautioned that it would take a miracle for Kissinger to work out an entire disengagement plan during his visit to the Middle East this week

An Israeli-Syrian disengagement probably would bring a resumption of the Middle East peace talks in Geneva. President Nixon said at his news conference Monday night that the Arab oil embargo against the United States and efforts to arrange an Arab-Israeli peace are "not directly linked." But he added that "what happens in one area has an effect on the other.

Kissinger flew to London Monday to talk with the British foreign secretary. Sir Alec Douglas-Home, about the Middle East, the energy crisis and the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks. It's the American secretary's fourth trip to the Middle East since the October war.

Kissinger will spend Tuesday in Damascus and go to Israel on Wednesday. Aides said he did not intend to repeat the shuttle diplomacy that produced the Israeli-Egyptian disengagement agreement last month. But they said he might return once to Damascus with any proposals the Israelis made.

police said Monday. Police bomb expert Newton Porter said the 90-pound chunks were an explosive similar to TNT and he had it gently removed to the bomb dump

Bean prices bring end to donations

WASHINGTON (AP) - Beans are so expensive even the Agriculture Department says it can't afford to donate any to poor people and schools.

Further, according to USDA bean experts, the price crunch probably will worsen before new harvests are ready later this year. But even after the harvest the general momentum of food prices may keep beans much higher than a year or so ago

The Bureau of Labor Statistics tells this bean story: A year ago a one-pound bag sold in retail stores for 25.7 cents on the average. By January this year beans were 57.2 cents a bag.

Last week the Agriculture Department, for the first time in recent memory, rejected all offers by vendors to sell dry beans to the government for donation to various food program operations.

Farmers in Michigan, California, Idaho, North Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado and other bean areas produced a smaller crop last year, about 16.8 million 100-lb. bags, compared with 18.1 million in 1972.

Consumers turned to more beans last year as food prices generally climbed sharply, but export sales to foreign countries also added their toll.

As a result of the bean drain, farm prices for what reserves remain have jumped, from slightly more than 10 cents a pound a year ago to 32.5 cents in

Say Shultz resignation draws near

WASHINGTON (AP) - Informed government sources say the longrumored resignation of Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz may be announced this week.

David Rockefeller, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the Chase Manhattan Bank, is under consideration to replace to Shultz, according to several sources.

However, another source indicated Monday that federal energy chief William E. Simon, now deputy to Shultz, is still being considered for the cabinet post.

Simon has said he could not hold both the job as treasury secretary and his present position as administrator of the Federal Energy Office set up last Dec.

Shultz is scheduled to attend meetings in Santiago, Chile, in March announce his resignation effective at a later date, possibly in April or May. Shultz, 53, joined the Nixon cabinet as secretary of labor in 1970. He became director of the Office of Management and Budget in June 1970, then returned to the cabinet as treasury secretary in May 1972.

Winthrop Aldrich dies

NEW YORK (AP) - Winthrop W. Aldrich, 88, former board chairman of the Chase National Bank and former United States ambassador to the Court of St. James, died Monday. # Driver charged as truck hits school bus

Sheriff's deputies reported an accident at 8:15 a.m. today between a Washington C.H. school bus bound for Laurel Oaks Vocational School and a truck on the CCC-Highway-W, near the C.W. Trailer Park.

The accieent occurred when Ronald F. Hurless, 29, C.W. Trailer Park, pulled out onto the new CCC-Highway-W from one of the joining roads which link the new CCC-Highway with the old CCC-Highway, into the path of the school bus, driven by Betty L. Dowler, 45, of 320 Ely St.

The result of the collision did severe damage to the truck and moderate damage to the school bus.

Hurless was charged by Sheriff's deputies with failure to yield. There were no injuries officially reported by the Sheriff's department, but deputy sheriff David Krupla stated he had heard one of the students on the bus had a lacerated finger in the accident.

Another accident reported by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department occurred at 5:45 p.m. Monday, 1.6 miles south of Jeffersonville on Ohio

A car driven by Donald E. Robinette Jr., 19. Jeffersonville, slid broadside on the snow and struck a fence owned by Harold Klever, Ohio 729. Robinette's car incurred extensive damage, but he was uninjured.

City police reported an accident between cars driven by Karol A. Clevelle, 21, Sturgeon Mills-Rock Mills Rd., and James F. Steele, 42, of 442 East St, at 8:42 Monday, in front of Hidy's Market, 1151 Columbus Ave. The Steele car was slightly damaged.

Bakers open campaign on bread

WASHINGTON (AP) - The American Bakers Association began today a "Save our Bread" campaign to drum up congressional support for curbs on U.S. wheat exports until the new harvest is ready next summer. Robert J. Wager, association president, told a Capitol Hill rally the country will run out of wheat soon if exports are allowed to remain unchecked.

'Unless swift action is taken, American consumers face the grim prospect of a bread shortage this spring, and our industry may go over the brink into economic ruin," Wager said in a statement.

Bakers previously had warned bread prices could climb to $1 a loaf by spring if the grain drain continues. Export sales in the United States are handled by private companies which are free to sell to foreign customers.

The Agriculture Department estimates soaring exports will leave a reserve of 178 million bushels of wheat at the end of the current fiscal year on June 30, the smallest in 27 years.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and other USDA officials, however, say talk of $1 bread is ridiculous and unsubstantiated. The wheat supply will be tight but there will be no shortage.

A large high pressure system, centered over the lower Mississippi Valley early today, will move eastward today and tonight, bringing somewhat warmer weather to Ohio.

Southerly winds were expected to push afternoon temperatures today into the 20s and 30s. Readings tonight should dip to the teens and 20s under clear skies.

Cloudy skies will move into northern Ohio Wednesday, while sunny skies should prevail over the south. Afternoon readings will range from the 30s in the north to the 40s south.

Clearing skies and arctic air overnight allowed temperatures across the state to fall to a few degrees above zero in some places to the teens elsewhere. A few light snow flurries were reported in southern counties overnight.

Skies will be cloudy Thursday, followed by a chance of rain or snow north and rain south Friday, ending Saturday. Highs will range in the 40s and 50s Thursday and in the 30s on Saturday. Lows will be in the 30s Thursday and in the 30s Saturday.

Unseasonable cold gripped much of the East today, and northerly winds pushed belowfreezing temperatures south as far as central Florida. Overnight, the mercury dipped to the

Ransom, demand of food for painting turned down

A telephone caller with a West Indian accent told a newspaper Monday night that the 17th century Dutch masterpiece "The Guitar Player" would be destroyed unless food worth half a million pounds - $1.15 million - is distributed within 14 days to the poor on the Caribbean island of Grenada.

Illtyd Harrington, deputy leader of the Greater London Council, said: "If anyone wants to talk, they have to approach us directly at the council. But I am not offering half a million to anyone. We haven't got it. We are operating on a shoestring. We are not being blackmailed into any situation."

The value of the painting, one of less than 30 by Jan Vermeer that are known to exist, has been estimated as high as $4.4 million, but it is believed that it was not insured. It was stolen Saturday night from Kenwood House in suburban

Auto insurance costs may rise; inflation blamed

NEW YORK (AP) - An industry study predicts that inflation might boost auto insurance rates despite the reduction in traffic accidents due to the nationwide gasoline shortage

"Frequency of claims is only part of the story behind the losses paid by automobile insurance companies; the average cost of settling the claims is equally important," the group said.

The report by an industry advisory committee was prepared for a special task force of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, the state officials who regulate policy rates.

The study listed auto repairs and medical treatment as costs to the insurance companies that already have risen sharply.

Opinion And Comment

White House safeguards

One question is insistently brought to mind by the episode of a stolen helicopter forced down on the White House lawn. This is whether security plans are adequate to safeguard the White House against a suicide at-

No such attack may have been contemplated by the Army private who swept toward the official residence of the President in a stolen chopper. His tactics made the possibility chillingly evident, however. And this is exactly what the Maryland state trooper at the controls of the pursuit helicopter believed was in store: he said later he thought the pilot of the craft he was chasing meant to "end it all" with a crash into the White House.

Would such a maneuver have succeeded? No one can say for sure, but circumstances indicate that it might have. The invading helicopter came down to a bouncy landing on the south lawn after Secret Service officers opened fire with shotguns.

Does anyone suppose that shotgun fire would have prevented a suicidal pilot from hurtling the craft on into the White House?

A better solution to the problem of such attacks does not come readily to mind. Still, it seems likely that with all the resources at its command the Secret Service might devise stronger safeguards.

In the wake of the helicopter episode there would be a thoroughgoing review of plans and procedures.

Energy: A tale of two regions

I left Connecticut last week for Alabama, allowing 45 extra minutes to pick up some gas on the way to the Bradley International Airport near Hartford. It was a little after 2 in the Only one gas station happened to be open in my home town of Cheshire; oddly, it was an independent, with a long line stretching up along Main Street past the funeral parlor almost to the high school.

Skipping that one for fear of missing my plane, I moved on to the next town of Southington. The Mobil station I usually patronize was shut down tight. I moved on, worriedly, for a long run on a superhighway, where gas isn't sold.

After Hartford I pulled off to gas stations on connecting roads; they were either out of gas, shut for the day, or with lines that would have tied me up for an hour.

Finally, at Bloomfield, a small community close to the airport, I found one willing station and got enough gas for my return trip home three days hence. But I had to run madly for the plane after parking my car at the far end of the lot. Luckily I'm in good shape: I'd hate to have risked that run with a defective heart.

A COMMON ENOUGH story, which, in itself, is hardly worth adding to the thousands of similar stories in the Northeast. What makes it interesting is what happened at the other end of my trip, after I had changed planes in Atlanta for the airport outside of Montgomery, Ala. The Avis girl who rented me a drive-yourself said, cheerfully, "Your Plymouth has only a half a tank. But you won't have any

She was right. I pulled out or tne airport bound for the Hall School of Journalism at Troy State University, an hour's drive south of Montgomery. The gas stations were all in business. Prices in the upper forties for regular

I asked some questions. No, there hadn't been much trouble about fuel in Alabama. Some stations off the main highways had run out during the trucking strike. But that was not due to any basic shortage at the big storage

Alabama is, of course, close to Louisiana and Texas sources. But it has other advantages. The electrical utilities in the state do not compete with motorists for oil products; they burn the coal that is a bundant in the southern Appalachians. This has caused air pollution from temperature inversions in Birmingham, the iron city of north Alabama which is situated in a bowl. But sulfur from coal doesn't hurt most of the state, which is predominantly small town and rural.

The contrast with the U.S. Northeast, which is so uptight about energy, was startling. I don't begrudge the Alabamans their gas or their coal-fired utilities, but their good future points to two defects in Washington's planning to surmount an energy crisis that is regional, not national states closer to oil-producing regions are getting more than enough. Of course, there may be tanker, pipeline, refinery and storage problems that would put the Northeast behind the eight-ball for fuel no matter what Washington did about establishing

But if there are such problems (maybe some Northeast refineries can only take Venezuelan or Arab oil), it is never explained to us.

Defect Number Two in handling the energy situation from Washington is in trying to enforce a general cutback in the use of electricity. In December, Alabamans, like other Americans, were given to understand that it would be upatriotic to light up their Christmas

THE POOR UTILITIES, with plenty of easily available coal to burn, saw their earnings threatened for no good reason. They tried, discreetly, to tell their customers that there was no point in putting miners out of work locally just to satisfy the Washington urge to generalize a policy that was legitimate enough in oil-burning and in coaldeficient regions.

The Alabama power grid, of course, feeds into the grids of contiguous states, but they weren't suffering from an electrical shortage in December,

The moral: if you aren't going to let the "market" distribute energy, the Washington czars and bureaucrats in charge of allocations and general policies should spend half their time out

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

Another View

I feel there are some proceedings presently in progress with which the general public has not had the opportunity to become familiar.

There is an official body in our county known as the Fayette County Planning Commission. This Commission is composed of 11 staunch and conscientious individuals who, I believe, place the best interests of our countywide community first in their minds and decisions.

The FCPC is composed of 11 members, three from the city of Washington C.H., your three county commissioners and five members appointed at large from outside the city. We derive our powers by authority granted in Chapters 711 and 713 of the Ohio Revised Code.

In the past you haven't heard too much about this body. It appears, however, that as a result of a recent court decision, you will be hearing much more in the future - beginning

This is the official body which has responsibility and authority to approve subdivision regulations or amend existing regulations. You would think, in view of the previous statement, that the PC would have the authority to approve or disapprove subdivision plats subject to provisions of their regulations and, indeed, it does. The county commissioners along with other official bodies also play important parts in this process of approval or disapproval which I will discuss in a subsequent letter if the editor will permit. (Permission granted - Ed.) Now, we have for several years, had subdivision regulations. There has recently emerged a unanimous feeling on the part of the present PC that these regulations might be revised to the advantage of the citizens of our county. This is the process to which I referred in my first statement. The process of revision or amendment requires, according to the law, that a public hearing be held.

A hearing must be held by, not only the PC, but the county commissioners as well. The PC voted, without dissent, to hold their hearing the evening of March 12. The commissioners voted unanimously to hold theirs March 25.

If one were to examine the caliber of at least 10 of the 11 members of this commission, I believe one could reasonably conclude that these citizens are primarily and acutely interested in the best interests of Fayette County as a whole. The 11th member is myself and I'll not sit in judgment on myself -I'll let you do that.

It is reasonable to expect that there probably will be pros and cons to these proposals as is most always the case. The merits and motivations of the cases presented, I'm sure, will be justly and objectively considered by the Board of County Commissioners and the Fayette County Planning Commission in the light of what is best for the most people of our county.

If I'm granted the space, I'll write you another letter in the near future setting forth more details of the law and of the proposal to amend.

Sanction notice hits Southwest school district

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Education Association (OEA) issued a sanction notice Monday charging the Southwest Hamilton Local School District of Harrison is "an undesirable place to work.'

The OEA's 30-member executive committee said the Southwest school board "has failed to guarantee every professional educator the right to due process" in its dismissal policy.

That policy is the heart of a dispute involving more than 100 of the district's 135 teachers who have been striking the school since Friday.

An OEA study was conducted of the district last June. The sanction notice will remain in force until the board takes action to resolve the issues, the

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

In the 12th district in Pennsylvania the outcome was not as simple. The Democratic candidate, John P. Murtha, in a kind of tacit agreement with the Republican candidate, Harry Fox, did not exploit Watergate.

Concentrating on bread and butter issues such as high prices and the gasoline shortage he spoke only by inference of Watergate and the President's standing. Murtha won by 242 votes out of 121,260 cast. In a recount demanded by Fox this is being whittled down to a point at which the Republican may be the official winner. In Murtha's squeak win, if it proves to be that, his failure to exploit Watergate was only one reason why what had been expected to be a big Democratic victory was little better than a standoff. BIG LABOR came into the district with nationally known speakers and with money. This was resented in a district which had given the late John P. Saylor, a Republican, comfortable majorities.

The lesson is that the old politics, the politics of Big Labor, will not do in the present mood of disillusion. All the talk is about the money that businessmen poured into the Nixon campaign, but what about the money labor spent? This is the theme of letters coming to #### resulting from the resignation of William J. Keating to become president of the conservative Cincinnati Enquirer.

Cutting Cincinnati in half the district which is 20 per cent black includes the University of Cincinnati and such prosperious predominantly white suburbs as Indian Hills. Keating's majority was 70 per cent in 1972.

First District of Ohio, a vacancy

While it is not a swing district the seat has been held in recent years by leaders in both parties. John Gilligan, the Democrat who went on to be governor of Ohio, held it for one term before he ran for statewide office. Robert Taft Jr. preceded Gilligan in 1962 and then went on to serve two terms beginning in 1966 before running successfully for the Senate.

BOTH TOM LUKEN, the Democratic candidate, and Willis Gradison, the Republican, are former Cincinnati mayors. They are both members of the City Council. Gradison is a wealthy conservative who will have a problem separating himself from the Nixon administration.

Taking his cue from the Michigan upset, Luken is under no such handicap as he flogs the Watergate horse.

The words emblazoned in letters of fire on the Republican sky are those of Sen. Barry Goldwater: If you won by less than 62 per cent in 1972 you are in trouble. That goes for at least half the Republicans in the House today, not including those who have opted out often from districts long considered safe. In the field of practical politics as in other areas the Republicans are plagued by President Nixon's arrogant and sometimes almost capricious use of the power that came with his overwhelming mandate of 1972.

He took George Bush out of the United Nations where he was becoming an effective representative of the United States and installed him as chairman of the Republican National Committee. It was hardly a favor either to the party or to Bush whose qualifications do not include a knowledge of state and district politics across the nation.

WITH THE UPSET in Michigan the warning lights are glowing red. If Ford had been running for re-election in his old district the outcome would never have been in doubt. Even though he made a big pitch in VanderLaan, he could not transfer his popular hold to a newcomer. Similarly in Cincinnati, where Ford also campaigned, if Keating were the candidate he would in all likelihood be

TV Viewing

By JERRY BUCK Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you want to know what television's going to offer next season, just keep watching the tube. A majority of the pilots for next season are parading by now

Next season the networks will be out to tickle your funny bone with more comedy, warm your heart with more family drama, stir your memories with nostalgia and thrill you with detective derring-do.

It's not difficult to recognize a pilot. That's any movie in which the hero or heroine is still alive at the fadeout.

But even that yardstick is becoming difficult to apply. ABC's "The Cowboys" was taken from the theatrical film in which John Wayne was killed. The series carries on with the seven young cowboys. In the CBS movie "Sunshine" the heroine died of cancer. NBC is developing a pilot for her surviving husband and daughter.

Everyone's been trying to come up with a version of "The Waltons." The first show up to bat is the midseason replacement "Apple's Way," which sure enough comes from the people who gave you the original. The reception of "Apple's Way" to date has not been overwhelming and the network programmers will be taking a hard look at its fate before pencilling in next year's schedules in mid-March. Jay Sharbutt is on special assignment.

The only series already signed for next September are NBC's "Born Free," which has been described as "The Waltons" with lions; ABC's "Paper Moon," which has been de- complete desegregation of the school scribed as "The Waltons" with a little larceny; and CBS' "Rhoda," a Valerie Harper spinoff from "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." So far no one's been able to make a connection between "Rhoda" and "The Waltons.

Probably fewer detective shows will be scheduled next year. The trend seems to be on the downhill side, a sure indication being the fact that some pilots are combining cops with comedy. They are "Ann in Blue," "Mr. and Mrs. Cop," "The Life and times of Capt. Barney Miller" and "Double Trouble"

Jackie Gleason will make a 90-minute Mystery Movie pilot for NBC called "Morgan." Richard Crenna stars in "Honky Tonk," from the old movie. Glenn Ford is in "Punch and Jody." James Garner makes the pilot "The Rockford Files." Michael Landon is in "The Little House on the Prairie."

Man schedules test run of fuel from farm products

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) -Parttime inventor Josiah (Joe) Morgan announced Monday he'll give his low-cost substitute fuel a test run Saturday with a trip to Columbus.

Morgan said he's come up with a mixture made from farm products, but he's keeping quiet about the exact ingredients. He said the new fuel could take him 400 miles in a standard automobile at a cost of two dollars.

"It will be a fast go to get ready, but at present it looks like I'll be able to make it Saturday," said the 37-year-old employe of a Middletown boxmaking

"I intend to use possibly three fuel mixes, with something in each that the others do not have. This should give me a report on which performs the best.

"It certainly will not be a rehearsed performance, but I'm confident on proving it. I have no doubts about it.' Morgan said he'll install a fuel pack in the back of his 1968 station wagon for the trip. The new fuel, he said, does not require any alterations to the auto's engine.

See. . . .

Before making the trip, Morgan said he'll have a lawyer investigate whether he'll be violating any state laws by driving on a highway using a taxless

After the maiden trip to Columbus, he plans a journey to Nashville, Tenn., using only the mixture which showed the best results.

2 campus landmarks to disappear at OSU

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State University officials announced Monday two campus landmarks will be demolished within the next 18 months as part of a space reassignment program.

The building are the 79-year-old McMillin Observatory, which has been used for storage since 1967, and the 49year-old president's home, which has been occupied since 1972 by the National Center on Educational Media and Materials.

State no-fault divorce pushed

Associated Press Writer COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Ohio soon may have a new law that would permit riage. a married couple to obtain a divorce without "perjuring themselves or each other," says Rep. Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville.

Kevin Cook of Jamestown's Four Season Florist and as associate of Ellen's Green Thumb of Washington presented a delightful program by designing a bridal colonial bouquet. He explained, as he went along, the importance of ordering flowers in advance. The most important rule of all is to know just how many altar vases corsages, bridesmaids bouquets, boutonniers, one will need on the first visit to the florist. This enables them to serve one more efficiently, and helps to keep the cost within range.

The colonial bouquet, which may be removed from the handle and serve as a centerpiece following the wedding, was presented to Sherri Woods who will be a bride on November 30th. The corsage, designed by Shirley Southern of white chrysanthemums, was presented to Pamela Pratter. A beautiful centerpiece was given to Mrs. Ronald Palmer, mother of Sherri, who's wedding date of March 1st is the first in this group of girls. A white bridal guest book was a gift to Susan Coe. Each of the 30 brides-to-be were remembered with gifts from each of the sponsors. Those assisting with the program were Mrs. Ellen Cartwright of Ellen's, Mrs. Alberta Jacobs of Steens, ······

Mrs. Helen Spilker, hostess for Mrs. Mary Burbage of Pattons, Mrs. Bernice Keaton, Washington Savings Bank, Bill Boylan and Teresa Neiswonder of Boyland Jewelry and Mrs. Connie Keys of French Hardware.

Commodores swim past Rebels 84-68

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's sink or swim time and Vanderbilt's Commodores kept their heads way above water.

Vanderbilt could have gone under, weighed down by Saturday night's 59-53 loss to Tennessee, but the Commodores stayed afloat.

"I can't remember one of our teams that responds to pressure any better than this one," said Vanderbilt Coach Roy Skinner after his club bounced back with an 84-68 Southeastern Conference victory over Mississippi Monday night.

"This was no time to play around," said Vanderbilt's Terry Compton, who tossed in 18 points. "Our backs were to the wall."

The victory elevated Vanderbilt's record in the SEC to 14-2, the identical in-conference marks posted by seventh-ranked Alabama, which beat Georgia 99-74 Monday night.

If Vanderbilt can beat its two remaining SEC opponents, Kentucky and Florida, then the Commodores would become the Conference representative in the NCAA tournament — regardless of what Alabama does — since they hold two victories over the Crimson Tide. In other games involving Top 20 teams, ninth-rated Indiana downed Michigan State 91-85 and No. 17 Michigan edged Wisconsin 78-74.

In a late game, 16th-rated Creighton played Navy SubPac. Jeff Fosnes led Vanderbilt's scoring with 26 points while Matt Meibers had 16 points for the Rebels. Georgia held a 2-0 lead but that was to be the only time the Bulldogs were in front all evening. Alabama, led by Charles Cleveland's 18 points, raced to a 19-7 advantage and stretched it to 22 points before the first half was over. There's a battle in the Big Ten, too, and Indiana seems to have the inside track. Michigan State, 8-4 in the conference, is now out of the race but the Spartans gave it a run. 'Michigan State is really quick," said Indiana Coach Bobby Knight, whose Hoosiers lead the Big Ten with a 11-1 record, one game ahead of Michigan. "I was as apprehensive about this game as I have been about any game all season.'

Freshmen center Kent Benson scored 19 points and grabbed 12 rebounds for Indiana, 19-3.

Campy Russell, this year's Big Ten scoring leader, raised his 21.6 points per game pace with a 36-point effort, his season high in leading Michigan over Wisconsin.

Elsewhere in college basketball, Florida used a freeze and Gene Shy's 30 points to upset Kentucky 75-65; Jerry Jenkins sank 25 points to lead Mississippi State over Tennessee 62-58, and Leon Johnson's 25-footer at the buzzer gave Centenary a 79-78 victory over Houston Baptist.

Also, Austin Peay State University got 38 points from James "Fly" Williams and beat Middle Tennessee State 91-66; Leon Benbow, with 22 points, led Jacksonville over Cincinnati 81-66; Donald Smith tossed in 27 points to lead Dayton past Miami of Ohio 79-74, and Sam McCants pumped in 29 points in Oral Roberts' 102-88 victory over Southern Illinois.

Any day now you'll be hearing from assorted spring training camps that the pitchers are ahead of the hitters. For the time being, though, the pitchers are trying to catch up with the team doc-

The chief casualties are Nelson Briles of the Kansas City Royals, Craig Skok of the Boston Red Sox and a pair of San Francisco Giant rookies Butch Metzger and John D'Acquisto. Briles is limping noticeably from a knee injury, Skok has a tender elbow while Metzger and D'Acquisto are down with the flu.

Most of the hitters haven't reported yet but third baseman Sal Bando of the world champion Oakland A's probably wishes he was swinging against Nolan Ryan rather than Uncle Sam. The good Bando news is that he recently won a $100,000 contract arbitration against owner Charles O. Finley. The bad Bando news is that he's stuck in Oakland while the Internal Revenue

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) -National Football League owners, with the 1975 Super Bowl site decided and the list of possible expansion cities cut to five, were to take a hard look today at upcoming negotiations with the Players Association.

The 26 owners opened their winter meeting Monday by reaffirming New Orleans as the site for Super Bowl IX, either in the Louisiana Superdome under construction or at Tulane Stadium, and by cutting the 24-city list of possible expansion cities to Honolulu, Memphis, Phoenix, Seattle and Tampa.

The owners will meet again in April in New York to decide whether to expand in 1975 and if so, how many franchises to let in.

If a decision is made to expand only two cities are expected to get the nod. The NFL's management council, headed by John Thompson, was to brief owners today on preparations for a March 16 meeting with player representatives on a contract to replace the expired four-year pact.

The results of an NFL study of artificial playing surfaces, expected to be one of the main issues in the negotiations, were also to be presented.

Players have asked for a ban against future installation of such turfs because they cause injuries.

Other key issues with the players are expected to involve pay for preseason games, freedom to play out options and change teams without penalties on teams hiring them, insurance, the pension plan and Commissioner Pete Rozelle's authority on disciplinary

The players have threatened to strike if their demands aren't met.

NEW YORK (AP) - The age of unlimited natural resources is coming to an end and that means the country badly needs a national planning corporation, said John T. Connor, Allied Chemical chairman and former secretary of commerce.

Such a corporation, independent of politics and staffed by the best minds available, would coordinate research into the availability of resources, make projections and recommend action for both government and industry.

Otherwise, he said, the danger exists that all powers and responsibilities may be usurped by a federal government that feels compelled, in the general interest, to allocate materials and dictate policy.

He indicated that central planning, long abhorred by a nation of private interests that preferred to do their own research and marketing, might now be required in the national interest.

"It seems to me that the developments now taking place in government indicates the need,' said Connor, referring to plans now being developed by oil consuming nations to help each other in times of scarcity.

'In order to do this the United States would have to have the power to seize from private owners, and sell or give to countries on an emergency basis."

But, he continued, "nobody is even thinking about how does the United States government get that seizure power." Nor, he suggested, is any serious thought being given to the alternatives to that eventuality.

'Hopefully, we won't have to nationalize oil and other industries, but at least we should begin a planning organization that will get the facts about the natural resources situation." Connor, who left the Johnson administration to assume his present job, suggests the format might be a Comsat-type company, federally chartered but not part of the governmental structure. But, because of a strong national interest, it would obtain funding from government as well as private sources.

Governmental units, corporations, universities, foundations and others would contract for research by the company, which would employ not only technicians and economists but experts in various disciplines, drawn from business, labor, education or elsewhere.

Rather than be organized to take action, the company would limit activities to advice and recommendations, and perhaps to stating the options for action by either private or governmental groups.

Connor, who is also a director of General Motors, described his idea as 'a plan in the rough that should be subjected to discussion and criticism.' There is, he said, "a great ignorance on the whole subject, an international ignorance.'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Meteorological Center estimates that missing adventurer Thomas Gatch Jr. had to ditch his balloon "Light Heart" in the Atlantic Ocean some 900 miles from the African coast

A spokesman for Gatch relayed the report from the federal weather agency Monday as rescuers continued searching the sands and seas of Africa in vain for any sign of the 47-year-old balloonist. Gatch, from Alexandria, Va., was

Ten helium-filled balloons pulled Gatch aloft as he left Harrisburg, Pa., nine days ago. He lost one shortly after leaving the United States mainland.

When sighted Thursday by the Spanish freighter "Meridian," Gatch's gondola was suspended from eight balloons, the spokesman said. He said that was enough during daytime, when the sun's rays heat the helium, but not enough to keep his craft aloft at night. Gatch is the son of Vice Adm.

The Gerber convention is used primarily over no trump sequences. Created by John Gerber, one of the world's most famous bridge masters, it was originally designed to be used only over no trump openings. This was done because a jump to four no trump invites partner to bid trump to ask for aces. Four diamonds by opener shows no aces or all four; four hearts shows one; four spades, two; and four no trump, three. Five clubs is used to ask for kings in the same manner.

After South opens this hand, from a Tuesday game, with a two no trump bid, North knows immediately that there must be a slam. With 14 points across from partner's minimum of 22, the partnership must have at least 36, which is enough for an excellent play at grand slam. However, if all four of the missing points that might be in the East-West hands happened to an ace, there will be no chance for seven.

Gerber furnishes the perfect way to handle the problem. Since a four no trump bid by North will be passed out if South has a minumum, North bids four clubs, asking for aces. To North's dismay, South bids four no trump, showing only three aces, and North bids the small slam.

Making six is no problem for South, and without a spade lead, seven can be made.

DP&L planning 5-year $773 million outlay

spend over $773 million in the next five years to meet energy requirements of its customers.

This figure was presented to the stockholders in the company's 1973 annual report by Robert B. Killen, chairman and president.

The peak demand for electricity in the DP&L service area has more than doubled in the last eight years, and it is expected to double again by 1982, the report pointed out. The company is continuing its cooperation with the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. and the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. in the construction of commonlyowned generation and transmission facilities.

DP&L's production capability will increase from the present 2.16 million kilowatts to approximately 3.1 million kilowatts by the end of the next five

DP&L'S operating revenues were $229,380,000 in 1973 compared to $220,160,000 in 1972, but net earnings per share dropped from $2.15 to $1.87. Although conservation efforts contributed to part of the decline, Killen pointed out that warmer temperatures, an increase in the cost of borrowing money to finance construction, and an increase in the number of common shares outstanding were three factors.

Also, the use of less efficient units while modifications were being made on two large generating units increased operating costs.

Almost all of DP&L's electric output is produced by coal-fired generating units. Therefore, the company presently is in a comparatively favorable position concerning fuel supply. But, the report pointed out that mine production is not increasing proportionally with demand, and prices for quality low-sulphur coal are going up considerably.

Eledtric utilities converting from oilfired to coal-fired units are also causing increasing demands on the mines.

DP&L's natural gas allotments are expected to be reduced by as much as 21.5 per cent over the next five years. However, the company has contracted to purchase annually, for the next 10 years, synthetic pipeline quality gas from a reforming plant at Green Springs, near Fremont. This plant is expected to be in operation next month. Also, a 25-year agreement has been

Senate takes up pay boost issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The a third of the members are elected this agonizing, election-year question of year, said a vote will be taken before whether to take a pay raise is closing in the March 6 deadline. on members of Congress.

PRESIDENT NIXON

Service Committee, meeting on the issue in a closed session today, reportedly was searching for an acceptable compromise.

Its recommendation will just be a preliminary to a vote in the Senate itself, possibly later this week.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said that the sooner the Senate votes, the better.

Under a law passed in 1967, salary increases included in President Nixon's budget will take effect automatically March 6 unless disapproved by either the Senate or the House. Under Nixon's proposal, congressional pay, not raised since it was increased from $30,000 a year to $42,500 in 1969, would go up to $45,700 this year, $49,100 next year and in 1976 to $52,800. Similar three-step raises are provided for federal judges and top executive branch officials, except that Cabinet members and Supreme Court justices would have their salaries increased from $60,000 to $64,500 in a single step next year.

Resolutions before the Post Office Committee gave it various choices, ranging from disapproving all the proposed raises to blocking only the increases for members of Congress to permitting only judges to get higher

Still another possibility under discussion was recommending that a pay boost for Senators and House members be deferred until next year, after the election.

Nixon, acting on a presidential commission's recommendation for an immediate 25 per cent salary increase, modified it by spreading the raise over three years.

Congress also has authority under the law to modify the President's proposal, as well as to accept it or reject it.

The House, with all its members up for election this year, apparently is not going to vote on the issue. Its Post Office Committee scheduled a meeting last week to consider it but the meeting never came off. Fourteen members stayed away, preventing the presence of a quorum.

The Senate Post Office and Civil Jury testimony Service Committee, meeting on the plan rejected by President

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon says he won't testify before the Watergate grand juries but he would be willing to work out a way to tell his side of the story to special prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

'The special prosecutor transmitted the request that I testify before the grand jury and on constitutional grounds I respectfully declined to do so," the President told a news conference Monday night.

"I did offer, of course, to respond to an interrogatory that the special prosecutor might want to submit or to meet with him personally to answer questions and he indicated that he did not want to proceed in that way," Nixon

Jaworski had no immediate comment Monday night.

But it was clear that if the prosecutor pursued the demand for an historic presidential appearance before a grand jury, it could precipitate a confrontation that would dwarf the legal battles over access to White House

Never before in American history has a president been asked to testify before a grand jury.

Nixon already has been asked to appear as a witness at the California trial of former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman on state charges stemming from the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

The President declined a request that he appear but has taken no position on whether or not he would respond to written questions. A District of Columbia judge has scheduled legal arguments for March on the order summoning Nixon to California for the Ehrlichman trial.

Legal experts have said they doubted it would be possible to force a President to travel across the country to testify at rollback. Such a measure would increase the fuel shortage and require "rationing all over the country," Nixon declared in his nationally broadcast news conference Monday night.

He also said the administration would bring inflation under control by increasing food and fuel supplies, rather than controlling prices, and again vowed to keep the economy from sinking into recession this year.

At several points in the news conference, Nixon referred to the fuel shortage not as a crisis, but as a thought the embargo would be lifted, but he said he believes it is in the best interests of the Arab nations to begin U.S. oil shipments again.

He said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's Middle East trip to get a troop disengagement on the Syrian front will have a positive effect in getting the embargo lifted.

"By the same token, if the embargo is not lifted, it will naturally slow down the efforts that we are making on the peace front," Nixon said. Nixon opened the news conference with a statement on the energy crisis, saying that the home fuel oil shortage has been overcome and the nation's factories kept running despite the But he said the major problem remaining is gasoline, noting he had seen the long lines "as I have driven around in the Miami area and also in the Washington area.'

As a result of federal efforts to increase the flow of gasoline and dampen consumption, " ... I now believe confidently that there is a much better than even chance that there will be no need for gas rationing in the United States," he said.

Nixon said the energy bill, an omnibus measure that would give the administration broad powers, would be vetoed because he said it only manages the shortage rather than deal with the real problem of increasing supplies.

A price rollback would be "immediately popular," he said, but would eventually increase the gasoline lines and lead to rationing.

Nixon urged Congress to approve legislation to tax windfall profits of oil companies, deregulate natural gas prices, and allow amendments to environmental laws permitting greater use of coal as a fuel.

Road deaths dip sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) - The federal traffic safety director reports that deaths on the nation's highways were reduced by 23 per cent in January, the first month of the national mandatory 55 mile an hour speed limit.

Dr. James P. Gregory, administrator of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, said Monday there were 853 fewer deaths on the road last month than in January a year ago.

In December, Gregory said, all states had fewer fatalities than they had a year before.

But leaders of the Senate, where only State speed limit cut faces final action

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - State senators planned to vote today on a House-approved 55 miles per hour speed limit while other energy legislation headed into a new Senate subcommittee.

The immediately-effective speed limit bill, which could take effect before the week is out, is needed prior to March 3 to avoid state loss of about $170 million in federal highway funds. It would be effective upon signing by Gov. John J. Gilligan.

Sen. Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, chairman of the Ways & Means Committee which is considering three energy bills, said Monday he plans to put those into a subcommittee. The senator said he probably will name himself chairman and appoint an as yet undetermined number of other senators to the panel. In addition, the Hamilton County lawmaker said three members of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Conservation, and Environment will sit on the subcommittee as non-voting members. That committee is involved because of environmental aspects of the proposed legislation, he said. Malonev said Sens. Thomas A. Van

Meter, R-18 Ashland, Richard G. Reichel, R-29 Massillon, and Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, have been designated as the non-voting members of the subcommittee. The subcommittee will consider the governor's emergency energy bill, a Republican alternative to that measure introduced by Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, R-3 Columbus — and a bill already passed by the House which would beef up the powers of the Public Utilities Commission to deal with energy problems.

Maloney said he has discussed with Rep. Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, chairman of the House Select Committee on Energy, the possibility of joint meetings of energy subcommittees of the House and Senate. "He seemed friendly toward the idea," Maloney said.

Riffe last week named a subcommittee of the select committee to continue consideration of Gilligan's bill, criticized by some members of both parties because of broad powers it would vest in a proposed super energy board of seven named by the governor.

Named to the House subcommittee were Reps. Barney Quilter, D-47 Toledo; Harry J. Lehman, D-16 Shaker Heights; Thomas J. Carney, D-71 Youngstown, Norman A. Murdock, R-21 Cincinnati, and Thomas N. Kindness, R-58 Hamilton.

At its 1:30 p.m. floor session, the

House planned to vote today on a bill to strengthen laws against child abuse. Among other things, it would require all Ohioans to report cases of child abuse and could result in a $250 fine and up to 30 days in jail for withholding such information. In other business, Sen. Ronald M.

Mottl, D-24 Parma, said he plans to introduce a bill this week making kidnaping in Ohio punishable by the death penalty in the state's new criminal code. Under present law, the maximum penalty is seven years and a $10,000 fine, unless the kidnap victim is killed, Mottl said.

He said he wanted to introduce the bill in an effort to prevent political kidnapings in Ohio such as the Hearst abduction in California and a more recent one involving an Atlanta, Ga. newspaper editor.

2 young boys leave home for trip to Indian country

HAVRE, Mont. (AP) — Two young Wisconsin brothers set off from home with Indian headdresses, a tom tom, a homemade spear, bow and arrows and about 60 cents.

Douglas and William Morgan, 10 and 9, of Milwaukee told their parents in a note they were heading for Indian country to find an Indian tribe which would adopt them.

The boys, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Plonka, climbed aboard an Amtrak train without tickets Sunday morning and traveled to Minneapolis, unhindered by conductors. At Minneapolis they changed trains, getting on a Burlington Northern passenger train en route to Seattle,

Wash. They overshot Sioux Indian country in South Dakota, their apparent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beans are so expensive even the Agriculture Department says it can't afford to donate any to poor people and schools.

Further, according to USDA bean experts, the price crunch probably will worsen before new harvests are ready later this year. But even after the harvest the general momentum of food prices may keep beans much higher than a year or so ago.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics tells this bean story: A year ago a one-pound bag sold in retail stores for 25.7 cents on the average. By January this year beans were 57.2 cents a bag. Last week the Agriculture Departconference Monday night that the Arab ment, for the first time in recent memory, rejected all offers by vendors to sell dry beans to the government for donation to various food program operations.

> Farmers in Michigan, California, Idaho, North Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado and other bean areas produced a smaller crop last year, about 16.8 million 100-lb. bags, compared with 18.1 million in 1972.

> Consumers turned to more beans last year as food prices generally climbed sharply, but export sales to foreign countries also added their toll.

> As a result of the bean drain, farm prices for what reserves remain have jumped, from slightly more than 10 cents a pound a year ago to 32.5 cents in January.

However, another source indicated Monday that federal energy chief William E. Simon, now deputy to Shultz, is still being considered for the cabinet post.

Driver charged as truck hits school bus

Sheriff's deputies reported an accident at 8:15 a.m. today between a Washington C.H. school bus bound for Laurel Oaks Vocational School and a truck on the CCC-Highway-W, near the C.W. Trailer Park.

The accieent occurred when Ronald F. Hurless, 29, C.W. Trailer Park, pulled out onto the new CCC-Highway-W from one of the joining roads which link the new CCC-Highway with the old CCC-Highway, into the path of the school bus, driven by Betty L. Dowler, 45, of 320 Ely St.

The result of the collision did severe damage to the truck and moderate damage to the school bus.

Hurless was charged by Sheriff's deputies with failure to yield. There were no injuries officially reported by the Sheriff's department, but deputy sheriff David Krupla stated he had heard one of the students on the bus had a lacerated finger in the accident.

Another accident reported by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department occurred at 5:45 p.m. Monday, 1.6 miles south of Jeffersonville on Ohio

Bakers open campaign on bread

WASHINGTON (AP) - The American Bakers Association began today a "Save our Bread" campaign to drum up congressional support for curbs on U.S. wheat exports until the new harvest is ready next summer.

Robert J. Wager, association president, told a Capitol Hill rally the country will run out of wheat soon if exports are allowed to remain unchecked.

"Unless swift action is taken, American consumers face the grim prospect of a bread shortage this spring, and our industry may go over the brink into economic ruin," Wager said in a statement.

Bakers previously had warned bread prices could climb to $1 a loaf by spring if the grain drain continues. Export sales in the United States are handled by private companies which are free to sell to foreign customers.

Agriculture Department estimates soaring exports will leave a reserve of 178 million bushels of wheat at the end of the current fiscal year on June 30, the smallest in 27 years.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and other USDA officials, however, say talk of $1 bread is ridiculous and unsubstantiated. The wheat supply will be tight but there will be no shortage.

A telephone caller with a West Indian accent told a newspaper Monday night that the 17th century Dutch masterpiece "The Guitar Player" would be destroyed unless food worth half a million pounds - $1.15 million - is distributed within 14 days to the poor on the Caribbean island of Grenada.

Illtyd Harrington, deputy leader of the Greater London Council, said: "If anyone wants to talk, they have to approach us directly at the council. But I am not offering half a million to anyone. We haven't got it. We are operating on a shoestring. We are not being blackmailed into any situation."

The value of the painting, one of less than 30 by Jan Vermeer that are known to exist, has been estimated as high as $4.4 million, but it is believed that it was not insured. It was stolen Saturday night from Kenwood House in suburban Hampstead.

The frame of the Vermeer was found Monday in bushes half a mile from Kenwood House. One corner had been broken off and the glass smashed, raising fears that the painting itself could have been damaged. The thieves broke through a barred,

New York's voluntary gas plan fails

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York became the sixth state today to impose a mandatory system of gasoline rationing, junking a voluntary plan that had failed to end long lineups at the pumps.

Delaware's two-step mandatory plan, started Monday, also went into full effect today. In West Virginia, coal miners demanding gas rationing as a means of ensuring that they have enough fuel to commute to their jobs continued a walkout that has idled a number of mines in the southern part of the state.

New York will use the oddeven system devised by Oregon, in which motorists with even-numbered license plates can buy gas on even-numbered days and those with odd-numbered plates on odd-numbered days.

Sales are further restricted to cars with less than a half-tank of gas. Drivers and station operators will be subject to fines of $25 to $2,500 for violations.

Delaware got its plan going Monday by requiring drivers of large cars to purchase at least $5 worth of gasoline and drivers of small cars at least $3. If car tanks will not hold the minimum purchase, the station dealer pockets the difference.

In the second step today, Delaware motorists went on the odd-even system of gasoline purchases.

Besides New York and Delaware, the other states with mandatory gas allocation plans in effect are Hawaii, Maryland, New Jersey and Virginia. Another eight states have voluntary

Gov. Ronald Reagan said California will establish a gas marketing plan by Friday under which an odd-even system of gas purchases will be established in any county where the county

Auto insurance costs may rise; inflation blamed

NEW YORK (AP) - An industry study predicts that inflation might boost auto insurance rates despite the reduction in traffic accidents due to the nationwide gasoline shortage.

"Frequency of claims is only part of the story behind the losses paid by automobile insurance companies; the average cost of settling the claims is equally important," the group said.

The report by an industry advisory committee was prepared for a special task force of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, the state officials who regulate policy rates.

The study listed auto repairs and medical treatment as costs to the insurance companies that already have risen sharply.

White House safeguards

One question is insistently brought to mind by the episode of a stolen helicopter forced down on the White House lawn. This is whether security plans are adequate to safeguard the White House against a suicide at-contemplated by the Army private who swept toward the official residence of the President in a stolen chopper. His tactics made the however. And this is exactly what the Maryland state trooper at the controls of the pursuit helicopter believed was in store: he said later he thought the pilot of the craft he was chasing meant to "end it all" with a crash into the White House.

Would such a maneuver have succeeded? No one can say for sure, but circumstances indicate that it might have. The invading helicopter came down to a bouncy landing on the south lawn after Secret Service officers opened fire with shotguns.

Does anyone suppose that shotgun fire would have prevented a suicidal pilot from hurtling the craft on into the White House?

A better solution to the problem of such attacks does not come readily to mind. Still, it seems likely that with all the resources at its command the Secret Service might devise stronger safeguards.

In the wake of the helicopter episode there would be a thoroughgoing review of plans and procedures.

Only one gas station happened to be open in my home town of Cheshire; oddly, it was an independent, with a long line stretching up along Main Street past the funeral parlor almost to the high school.

Skipping that one for fear of missing my plane, I moved on to the next town of Southington. The Mobil station I usually patronize was shut down tight. I moved on, worriedly, for a long run on a superhighway, where gas isn't sold.

After Hartford I pulled off to gas stations on connecting roads; they were either out of gas, shut for the day, or with lines that would have tied me up for an hour.

Finally, at Bloomfield, a small community close to the airport, I found one willing station and got enough gas for my return trip home three days hence. But I had to run madly for the plane after parking my car at the far end of the lot. Luckily I'm in good shape: I'd hate to have risked that run with a defective heart.

A COMMON ENOUGH story, which. in itself, is hardly worth adding to the thousands of similar stories in the Northeast. What makes it interesting is what happened at the other end of my trip, after I had changed planes in Atlanta for the airport outside of Montgomery, Ala. I asked some questions. No, there hadn't been much trouble about fuel in Alabama. Some stations off the main highways had run out during the trucking strike. But that was not due to any basic shortage at the big storage

Louisiana and Texas sources. But it has other advantages. The electrical utilities in the state do not compete with motorists for oil products; they burn the coal that is a bundant in the southern Appalachians. This has caused air pollution from temperature inversions in Birmingham, the iron city of north Alabama which is situated in a bowl. But sulfur from coal doesn't hurt most of the state, which is predominantly small town and rural.

The contrast with the U.S. Northeast, which is so uptight about energy, was startling. I don't begrudge the Alabamans their gas or their coal-fired utilities, but their good future points to two defects in Washington's planning to surmount an energy crisis that is regional, not national.

Defect Number One is in gas allocation. If Washington is to be charged with administering a nonmarket justice in the distribution of fuel for motorists, the quotas are ob-states closer to oil-producing regions are getting more than enough. Of course, there may be tanker, pipeline, refinery and storage problems that would put the Northeast behind the eight-ball for fuel no matter what Washington did about establishing quotas.

But if there are such problems (maybe some Northeast refineries can only take Venezuelan or Arab oil), it is never explained to us.

Defect Number Two in handling the energy situation from Washington is in trying to enforce a general cutback in the use of electricity. In December, Alabamans, like other Americans, were given to understand that it would be upatriotic to light up their Christmas

THE POOR UTILITIES, with plenty of easily available coal to burn, saw their earnings threatened for no good reason. They tried, discreetly, to tell their customers that there was no point in putting miners out of work locally just to satisfy the Washington urge to generalize a policy that was legitimate enough in oil-burning and in coaldeficient regions.

The Alabama power grid, of course, feeds into the grids of contiguous states, but they weren't suffering from an electrical shortage in December,

The moral: if you aren't going to let the "market" distribute energy, the Washington czars and bureaucrats in charge of allocations and general policies should spend half their time out of Washington.

"SOME NUT OVER THERE IS INQUIRING ABOUT A 12,000-MILE CHECK-UP, "

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD: I feel there are some proceedings presently in progress with which the general public has not had the opportunity to become familiar.

There is an official body in our county known as the Fayette County Planning Commission. This Commission is composed of 11 staunch and conscientious individuals who, I believe, place the best interests of our countywide community first in their minds and decisions.

The FCPC is composed of 11 members, three from the city of Washington C.H., your three county commissioners and five members appointed at large from outside the city. We derive our powers by authority granted in Chapters 711 and 713 of the Ohio Revised Code.

In the past you haven't heard too much about this body. It appears, however, that as a result of a recent court decision, you will be hearing much more in the future - beginning

This is the official body which has responsibility and authority to approve subdivision regulations or amend existing regulations. You would think, in view of the previous statement, that the PC would have the authority to approve or disapprove subdivision plats subject to provisions of their regulations and, indeed, it does. The county commissioners along with other official bodies also play important parts in this process of approval or disapproval which I will discuss in a subsequent letter if the editor will permit. (Permission granted - Ed.)

Now, we have for several years, had subdivision regulations. There has recently emerged a unanimous feeling on the part of the present PC that these regulations might be revised to the advantage of the citizens of our county. This is the process to which I referred in my first statement. The process of revision or amendment requires, according to the law, that a public hearing be held.

A hearing must be held by, not only the PC, but the county commissioners as well. The PC voted, without dissent, to hold their hearing the evening of March 12. The commissioners voted unanimously to hold theirs March 25.

If one were to examine the caliber of at least 10 of the 11 members of this commission, I believe one could reasonably conclude that these citizens are primarily and acutely interested in the best interests of Fayette County as a whole. The 11th member is myself and I'll not sit in judgment on myself -I'll let you do that.

It is reasonable to expect that there probably will be pros and cons to these proposals as is most always the case. The merits and motivations of the cases presented, I'm sure, will be justify and objectively considered by the Board of County Commissioners and the Fayette County Planning Commission in the light of what is best for the most people of our county.

If I'm granted the space, I'll write you another letter in the near future setting forth more details of the law and of the proposal to amend.

J. Herbert Perrill

Sanction notice hits Southwest school district

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Education Association (OEA) issued a sanction notice Monday charging the Southwest Hamilton Local School District of Harrison is "an undesirable place to work.'

The OEA's 30-member executive committee said the Southwest school board "has failed to guarantee every professional educator the right to due process" in its dismissal policy.

That policy is the heart of a dispute involving more than 100 of the district's 135 teachers who have been striking the school since Friday.

An OEA study was conducted of the district last June. The sanction notice will remain in force until the board takes action to resolve the issues, the OEA said.

TV Viewing

By JERRY BUCK Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you want to know what television's going to offer next season, just keep watching the tube. A majority of the pilots for next season are parading by now.

Next season the networks will be out to tickle your funny bone with more comedy, warm your heart with more family drama, stir your memories with nostalgia and thrill you with detective derring-do.

It's not difficult to recognize a pilot. That's any movie in which the hero or heroine is still alive at the fadeout.

But even that yardstick is becoming difficult to apply. ABC's "The Cowboys" was taken from the theatrical film in which John Wayne was killed. The series carries on with the seven young cowboys.

In the CBS movie "Sunshine" the heroine died of cancer. NBC is developing a pilot for her surviving husband and daughter.

Everyone's been trying to come up with a version of "The Waltons." The first show up to bat is the midseason replacement "Apple's Way," which sure enough comes from the people who gave you the original. The reception of "Apple's Way" to date has not been overwhelming and the network programmers will be taking a hard look at its fate before pencilling in next year's schedules in mid-March. Jay Sharbutt is on special assignment.

The only series already signed for next September are NBC's "Born Free," which has been described as scribed as "The Waltons" with a little district," Moss said. larceny; and CBS' "Rhoda," a Valerie Harper spinoff from "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." So far no one's been able to make a connection between "Rhoda" and "The Waltons.

Probably fewer detective shows will be scheduled next year. The trend seems to be on the downhill side, a sure indication being the fact that some pilots are combining cops with comedy. They are "Ann in Blue," "Mr. and Mrs. Cop," "The Life and times of Capt. Barney Miller" and "Double Trouble."

Some stars from the past may return!" Jackie Gleason will make a 90-minute Mystery Movie pilot for NBC called "Morgan." Richard Crenna stars in "Honky Tonk," from the old movie. Glenn Ford is in "Punch and Jody." James Garner makes the pilot "The Rockford Files." Michael Landon is in 'The Little House on the Prairie."

Man schedules test run of fuel from farm products

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) -Parttime inventor Josiah (Joe) Morgan announced Monday he'll give his low-cost substitute fuel a test run

Saturday with a trip to Columbus. Morgan said he's come up with a mixture made from farm products, but he's keeping quiet about the exact ingredients. He said the new fuel could take him 400 miles in a standard automobile at a cost of two dollars. "It will be a fast go to get ready, but at present it looks like I'll be able to make it Saturday," said the 37-year-old employe of a Middletown boxmaking

"I intend to use possibly three fuel mixes, with something in each that the others do not have. This should give me a report on which performs the best.

"It certainly will not be a rehearsed performance, but I'm confident on proving it. I have no doubts about it." Morgan said he'll install a fuel pack in the back of his 1968 station wagon for the trip. The new fuel, he said, does not require any alterations to the auto's engine.

Before making the trip, Morgan said he'll have a lawyer investigate whether he'll be violating any state laws by driving on a highway using a taxless

After the maiden trip to Columbus, he plans a journey to Nashville, Tenn., using only the mixture which showed the best results.

Foes fight integration

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) Opposition mounted to the Cincinnati Board of Education's desegregation plan Monday.

A coalition of local civil rights and community organizations appeared before the board to voice disapproval of the present plan. The group wanted the new board to implement a broader desegregation plan approved by the previous board.

More than 700 of the city's public school teachers voted last week to oppose the new plan, which calls for voluntary desegregation by students and teacher transfers to achieve a 75 per cent white, 25 per cent black teacher ratio at all city schools.

Rev. Otis Moss, spokesman for the Coalition of Concerned Educators, Organizations and Citizens, told the board his group wants "integration of both faculty and students at the same

State no-fault divorce pushed

By ROBERT E. MILLER Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Ohio soon may have a new law that would permit a married couple to obtain a divorce without "perjuring themselves or each other," says Rep. Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville.

Norris is chief sponsor of a bill already approved by the House and pending in the Senate which in part embraces the so-called "no fault" divorce law currently in effect in California.

Ohio Perspective

The Westerville legislator doesn't like his bill to be described as "no fault," however, since it retains the right for partners in a marriage to sue one another if they can not agree on the terms of a settlement such as child custody and ownership of property.

Under his bill, if those things can be manner "satisfactory to the court."

agreed upon and if a man or his wife applies to a court a judge would be authorized simply to dissolve the mar-

Present law requires one spouse to swear that the others is guilty of one or more of 10 possible grounds for divorce.

The 10 existing grounds are adultery, wilful absence for a period of one year, desertion, extreme cruelty, habitual drunkenness, gross neglect, imprisonment by one party in a state or federal prison for a year or more, impotence, fraudulent contract or a divorce obtained outside the state by one of the parties.

Norris' bill adds the marriage dissolution authority as an 11th basis for divorce, along with some other checks that might be applied by a

A judge could, for instance, refuse to dissolve a marriage if one or both of the parties is below 18 years of age, unless they can certify that they have undertaken marriage counselling in

The judge might also order a couple to submit to conciliation for a period of 90 days.

Norris' bill also contains a clause that would permit a marriage to be dissolved if the partners have not lived together for a continuous period of two

This clause probably will be deleted, however, since the legislature recently enacted a separate bill that does the same thing. It was signed by Gov. John J. Gilligan and taken affect May 7.

The Westerville attorney is optimistic about the chances for his reform legislation to be enacted into law. It is needed, he maintains, "to bring Ohio's divorce laws out of the 19th Century.'

were carried throughout the room. Kevin Cook of Jamestown's Four Season Florist and as associate of Ellen's Green Thumb of Washington presented a delightful program by designing a bridal colonial bouquet. He explained, as he went along, the importance of ordering flowers in advance. The most important rule of all is to know just how many altar vases corsages, bridesmaids bouquets, boutonniers, one will need on the first visit to the florist. This enables them to serve one more efficiently, and helps to keep the cost within range.

The colonial bouquet, which may be removed from the handle and serve as a centerpiece following the wedding, was presented to Sherri Woods who will be a bride on November 30th. The corsage, designed by Shirley Southern of white chrysanthemums, was presented to Pamela Pratter. A beautiful centerpiece was given to Mrs. Ronald Palmer, mother of Sherri, who's wedding date of March 1st is the first in this group of girls. A white bridal guest book was a gift to Susan Coe. Each of the 30 brides-to-be were remembered with gifts from each of the sponsors. Those assisting with the program were Mrs. Ellen Cartwright of Ellen's, Mrs. Alberta Jacobs of Steens, Women's Christian Temperance Union met in the home of Miss Marian Christopher Friday afternoon. The meeting was opened by group singing "In the Garden", accompanied by Miss Christopher at the piano.

Mrs. Cloyce Copley presided. She announced a workshop for April 15, 16 and 17 to be held at Fort Hays Hotel in Columbus. There is a bill H.R. 11106, up for passage that would make expenditures for alcoholic beverage advertising no longer income tax deductable as it is now. All were urged to write to the congressman, asking him to support this bill.

Mrs. B.E. Kelley brought devotions concerning Frances Willard. As a small child, it was decided as to what her life's work would be. She grew up in the WCTU cause, and became organizer of Worlds W.C.T.U. Mrs. Kelley brought with her a bedspread that was knitted by hand and purchased at an auction from the personal items of Mrs. Eliza Thompson.

"Mother Thompson" as she was known, was the granddaughter of Ohio's Gov. Trimble. She was the organizer of WCTU and lived in Hillsboro in 1873.

Miss Mabel Briggs presented the program of the day. Mrs. J.G. Jordan read 10 Recommendations from Mrs. Fred Toose, WCTU state president. Miss Briggs gave a book review "Heritage of Dedication" by Agnes Dubbs Hays, former National WCTU president from 1953-1959.

Following the interesting program, Miss Christopher served a dessert course. The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Eldon Bethards. Miss Christopher will give the program.

Kyle Rote Jr. doesn't drive a blocklong limousine nor entertain friends in an apartment of mirrors with a llama rug. He never owned a mink coat. He never had a business agent to negotiate $100,000-plus contracts.

Fame and fortune hold a low rung on his scale of values. He has no desire to be a great sports hero, fascinating millions. He'd like to be a minister of some sort — at least an example to others.

"An athlete has a greater ministry than a preacher," says Kyle, who currently is studying theology in a seminary.

Mainly, during this particular period, Kyle is showing some of the world's greatest athletes how to be a champion. He is making a runaway of the 1974 Superstar competition, a unique, intriguing yet highly commercial promotion aimed primarily at selling condominiums and television space.

Against all odds, he is shaming such celebrated figures as football's O.J. Simpson, baseball's Pete Rose, basketball's John Havlicek and former Olympic standouts as Holland's Ard Schenk and Austria's Karl Schranz in tests of versatility and skill.

Baseball camps get under way

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Any day now you'll be hearing from assorted spring training camps that the pitchers are ahead of the hitters. For the time being, though, the pitchers are trying to catch up with the team doc-

The chief casualties are Nelson Briles of the Kansas City Royals, Craig Skok of the Boston Red Sox and a pair of San Francisco Giant rookies -Butch Metzger and John D'Acquisto. Briles is limping noticeably from a knee injury, Skok has a tender elbow while Metzger and D'Acquisto are down with the flu.

Most of the hitters haven't reported yet but third baseman Sal Bando of the world champion Oakland A's probably wishes he was swinging against Nolan Ryan rather than Uncle Sam. The good Bando news is that he recently won a $100,000 contract arbitration against owner Charles O. Finley. The bad Bando news is that he's stuck in Oakland while the Internal Revenue Service audits his income tax.

Briles, obtained by the Royals from Pittsburgh during the winter and tabbed as a regular KC starter, said he dislocated his left knee last week while working out in a Pittsburgh gym.

Skok, a left-hander who saw some action with the Red Sox last season, became the first Boston casualty when he developed tenderness in his pitching elbow and did not throw.

The flu bug had San Francisco Manager Charlie Fox worried. He said he was trying to isolate the stricken players to prevent the virus from spreading.

The list of ailing included Texas Manager Billy Martin. Martin, believed to be suffering from a kidney infection, flew to Washington for an examination by team physician Dr. George Resta. He was due back at the Rangers' Pompano Beach, Fla., camp

The list of those with injured pocketbooks grew with the addition of shortstops Tim Foli of the Montreal Expos and Marty Perez of the Atlanta Braves and Kansas City second baseman Cookie Rojas, all of whom lost arbitration cases

The designated hitter may be in the news today with an expected announcement from the National League that its teams will be allowed to use the DH during road exhibition games against American League clubs.

NFL ponders negotiation with Players Association

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) -National Football League owners, with the 1975 Super Bowl site decided and the list of possible expansion cities cut to five, were to take a hard look today at upcoming negotiations with the Players Association.

The 26 owners opened their winter meeting Monday by reaffirming New Orleans as the site for Super Bowl IX, either in the Louisiana Superdome under construction or at Tulane Stadium, and by cutting the 24-city list of possible expansion cities to Honolulu, Memphis, Phoenix, Seattle and Tampa.

The owners will meet again in April in New York to decide whether to expand in 1975 and if so, how many franchises to let in.

If a decision is made to expand only two cities are expected to get the nod. The NFL's management council, headed by John Thompson, was to brief owners today on preparations for a representatives on a contract to replace the expired four-year pact.

The results of an NFL study of artificial playing surfaces, expected to be one of the main issues in the negotiations, were also to be presented.

Players have asked for a ban against future installation of such turfs because they cause injuries.

Other key issues with the players are expected to involve pay for preseason games, freedom to play out options and change teams without penalties on teams hiring them, insurance, the pension plan and Commissioner Pete Rozelle's authority on disciplinary maiters

The players have threatened to strike if their demands aren't met.

Rozelle said the owners decided not to switch the site of the Jan. 12, 1975 Super Bowl from New Orleans because "we feel optimistic about it (Super-March 16 meeting with player dome) being ready."

Clay Kirby no longer 'The Kid'

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — At 25, his hair shows streaks of gray. But that's not the biggest reason Cincinnati Reds' newcomber Clay Kirby has lost his nickname "The Kid.

"I've settled down," said Kirby Monday during a weathershortened workout.

"It isn't my age that's matured me," said one of the newest members of the defending Western Division champs of the National League.

"It's all those innings pitched and all those close games," he said.

The winningest pitcher in the San Diego Padres' short history, Kirby came to the Reds in an off-season trade for outfielder Bobby Tolan.

Heading into his sixth big league season, Kirby is being counted on to solidify Cincinnati pitching.

"I'll be very surprised if he doesn't win at least 15 games for us," said Reds' Manager George "Sparky" Anderson.

It won't be the first time Kirby and Anderson were on the same team.

Anderson was managing the St. Louis Cardinals' St. Petersburg, Fla., farm team when Kirby was assigned to the Complete revisions will not be ready until next August, the report said. At that time, breakdowns by state will be available

The preliminary statistics, although showing reduced net farm income by year, still show relatively sharp increases from one year to the next beginning in 1972.

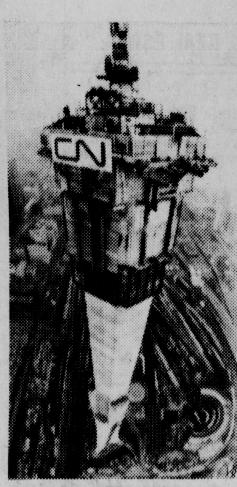

As published earlier, 1972 net farm income was a record $19.7 billion, up from $15.2 billion in 1971. The revision put 1972 at $17.6 billion, still a record, compared with the revised 1971 income of $13 billion.

Last year, USDA had reported earlier, farmers netted another record of $26.1 billion. The revised figure is $24.4 billion.

Although statistics do not put more or less money in farmers' pockets, the revisions do take into consideration some previously excluded income sources and expenses.

"A major addition is the inclusion of custom work and machine hire as both an income and expense item to farmers," the report said. "On the income side, recreational service were added."

National planning group pushed

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) - The age of unlimited natural resources is coming to an end and that means the country badly needs a national planning corporation, said John T. Connor, Allied Chemical chairman and former secretary of commerce.

Such a corporation, independent of politics and staffed by the best minds available, would coordinate research into the availability of resources, make projections and recommend action for both government and industry.

Otherwise, he said, the danger exists that all powers and responsibilities may be usurped by a federal government that feels compelled, in the

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) -North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops have inflicted heavy losses on South Vietnamese forces in the Mekong Delta, field reports said today.

A delayed report said Communist troops, moving under a heavy artillery barrage, overran 500-600 militiamen on Sunday south of Can Tho, the capital of the delta about 85 miles southwest of

The reports said 26 militiamen were killed, 22 were missing and 36 were wounded. There was no report on Communist losses.

In another battle Monday, on the edge of the U Minh forest about 145 miles southwest of Saigon, Viet Cong troops shelled and attacked a government battalion of 400 men at the Tan Phu Base.

The South Vietnamese called in bombers and artillery, and field reports said the government bombardment leveled the base.

The fate of the government battalion was still unknown today. Field reports said the battalion commander, his deputy and other infantrymen were missing. Much of the fighting in Vietnam in recent weeks has centered in the Mekong Delta where government forces and Communist troops are battling for territorial control and the rice harvest. Heavy fighting has been reported for more than a week along the southern edge of the Plain of Reeds about 50 miles southwest of Saigon. Government intelligence reports say up to 2,000 North Vietnamese troops there are trying to seize the rice crop.

Radio permit sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission said from the Greenville (Ohio) Board of Education for a permit to construct an FM radio station.

general interest, to allocate materials and dictate policy. He indicated that central planning, long abhorred by a nation of private interests that preferred to do their own research and marketing, might now be required in the national interest.

"It seems to me that the developments now taking place in government indicates the need,' said Connor, referring to plans now being developed by oil consuming nations to help each other in times of scarcity.

"In order to do this the United States would have to have the power to seize from private owners, and sell or give to countries on an emergency basis."

But, he continued, "nobody is even thinking about how does the United States government get that seizure power." Nor, he suggested, is any serious thought being given to the alternatives to that eventuality.

"Hopefully, we won't have to nationalize oil and other industries, but at least we should begin a planning organization that will get the facts about the natural resources situation." Connor, who left the Johnson administration to assume his present job, suggests the format might be a Comsat-type company, federally chartered but not part of the governmental structure. But, because of a strong national interest, it would obtain funding from government as well as private sources.

Governmental units, corporations, universities, foundations and others would contract for research by the company, which would employ not only technicians and economists but experts in various disciplines, drawn from business, labor, education or elsewhere.

Rather than be organized to take action, the company would limit activities to advice and recommendations, and perhaps to stating the options for action by either private or governmental groups.

Connor, who is also a director of General Motors, described his idea as "a plan in the rough that should be subjected to discussion and criticism.' There is, he said, "a great ignorance on the whole subject, an international ignorance."

Believe American balloonist had to ditch in Atlantic

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Meteorological Center estimates that missing adventurer Thomas Gatch Jr. had to ditch his balloon "Light Heart" in the Atlantic Ocean some 900 miles from the African coast.

A spokesman for Gatch relayed the report from the federal weather agency Monday as rescuers continued searching the sands and seas of Africa in vain for any sign of the 47-year-old balloonist.

Gatch, from Alexandria, Va., was striving to become the first man to cross the Atlantic in a balloon.

He was last sighted Thursday morning by a Spanish freighter some two-thirds of the way across the Atlantic, drifting at an altitude of only about 1,000 feet.

The spokesman for Gatch said the meteorological center estimated, on the basis of the sighting and known wind conditions, that Gatch came down Friday night about 900 miles away from the coast.

All air and sea traffic in an area off Spanish Sahara and Mauritania had been alerted to keep watch, the spokesman said. He said the Defense Department had agreed to dispatch a search plane to the area where Gatch was believed to have ditched.

According to the spokesman, Gatch had flares, reflecting mirrors, a strobe light, flashlight, emergency locator transmitter, a life vest, life raft and ample food supplies. The gondola of his balloon was designed to float at sea.

Ten helium-filled balloons pulled Gatch aloft as he left Harrisburg, Pa., nine days ago. He lost one shortly after leaving the United States mainland.

When sighted Thursday by the Spanish freighter "Meridian," Gatch's gondola was suspended from eight balloons, the spokesman said. He said that was enough during daytime, when the sun's rays heat the helium, but not enough to keep his craft aloft at night.

Gatch is the son of Vice Adm. Thomas L. Gatch, who commanded the battleship South Dakota in World War II and was the chief investigator in the crash of the airship Macon in 1935.

The Gerber convention is used primarily over no trump sequences. Created by John Gerber, one of the world's most famous bridge masters, it was originally designed to be used only over no trump openings. This was done because a jump to four no trump invites partner to bid six with maximum values and to pass with a minimum.

So, Gerber decided to use four clubs over an opening no trump to ask for aces. Four diamonds by opener shows no aces or all four; four hearts shows one; four spades, two; and four no trump, three. Five clubs is used to ask for kings in the same manner.

After South opens this hand, from a Tuesday game, with a two no trump bid, North knows immediately that there must be a slam. With 14 points across from partner's minimum of 22, the partnership must have at least 36, which is enough for an excellent play at grand slam. However, if all four of the missing points that might be in the East-West hands happened to an ace, there will be no chance for seven.

Gerber furnishes the perfect way to handle the problem. Since a four no trump bid by North will be passed out if South has a minumum, North bids four clubs, asking for aces. To North's dismay, South bids four no trump, showing only three aces, and North bids the small slam.

Making six is no problem for South, and without a spade lead, seven can be made.

Four of the five north-south pairs playing Tuesday stopped in a fine slam contract, and three of them made seven.

Are there any drugs that can control this? Mrs. H.S.V., Ark.

Dear Mrs. V.:

Excessive perspiration and overactivity of the sweat glands is known as hyperhidrosis.

Almost everyone perspires during sports or physical work or even under special stress and emotional tension.

It is important to rule out some basic underlying causes for profuse sweating.

Obesity, hormonal imbalance, and overactivity of the thyroid gland must be eliminated as a cause of excessive perspiration. When the bing of the fingernails and tips cause is found, in many instances the balance can be reestablished.

sometimes be associated with vitamin deficiencies and inadequate diets.

Brittle nails can be due to special intestinal disturbances in some rare instances.

DP&L planning 5-year $773 million outlay

The Dayton Power and Light Co. will negotiated for the purchase of spend over $773 million in the next five years to meet energy requirements of its customers.

This figure was presented to the stockholders in the company's 1973 annual report by Robert B. Killen, chairman and president.

The peak demand for electricity in the DP&L service area has more than doubled in the last eight years, and it is expected to double again by 1982, the report pointed out. The company is continuing its cooperation with the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. and the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. in the construction of commonlyowned generation and transmission facilities.

DP&L's production capability will increase from the present 2.16 million kilowatts to approximately 3.1 million kilowatts by the end of the next five expected to total $800,000.

DP&L'S operating revenues were $229,380,000 in 1973 compared to $220,160,000 in 1972, but net earnings per share dropped from $2.15 to $1.87. Although conservation efforts contributed to part of the decline, Killen pointed out that warmer temperatures, an increase in the cost of borrowing money to finance construction, and an increase in the number of common shares outstanding were three factors. Also, the use of less efficient units while modifications were being made on two large generating units increased operating costs. Almost all of DP&L's electric output is produced by coal-fired generating units. Therefore, the company presently is in a comparatively favorable position concerning fuel supply. But, the report pointed out that liquefied natural gas from Algeria, with deliveries to start in 1976. These supplies will replace to some extent the loss in natural gas from historical sources, but the cost will be much higher.

DP&L has applied for permission to recover these additional costs through gas cost adjustment provisions in its existing gas rates. The Public Utilities Commission has not yet ruled on the matter. An application for a natural gas rate increase was filed March 1, 1973. This application is still pending before the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio.

The company serves 389,311 electric customers and 271,169 gas customers. In 1973, DP&L paid $27 million in taxes to 645 different taxing entities. It was the largest single taxpayer in most of the 23 counties in which the company

Health care law overturned

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court ruled today that a oneyear residency requirement for statefinanced health care for the poor is an impermissible infringement on the right to travel.
